REDS PUSH NAZIS BACK IN STALINGRAD

CANADA CALLS DIEPPE RAID PRICE HEAVY

Defense Minister's Report Reviews Results of Smashing Commando Attack.

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—The Canadian government said flatly today that a "very heavy price" was paid in gathering what was learned by the allied forces in the raid Aug. 19 on Dieppe.

A full-dress review issued by Defense Minister J. L. Ralston, the first comprehensive official statement on the operation, summed up the raid as follows:

"The lessons learned and the experience gained, the forces, and particularly the land forces, paid a very heavy price."

The Canadian army furnished the bulk of the small part of the land forces and suffered 3,350 casualties—910 killed, 633 wounded and 1,847 missing—in the costliest Canadian military operation of the war.

Reason for Losses

These losses, the statement said, "were probably due in part to the misfortune "of a chance encounter with an escorted German tanker in the English channel.

"Such small circumstances are often important in operations of this kind," the statement said, for that mishap marred "complete achievement of surprise."

Out of the convoy, one armed enemy trawler was sunk and another probably was destroyed, but the incident had two results on the later land operation:

1. The British No. 3 commando force which had the task of attacking and destroying a battery at Berneval, six miles east of Dieppe, was unable to complete its assignment.

2. The royal regiment of Canada was 20 minutes late reaching the beach at Puits, a half mile east of Dieppe, and had to land in broad daylight instead of semi-darkness.

Enemy Well Prepared

"The enemy garrison at this point (Puits) were manning prepared defenses, were well provided with machineguns and mortars and were on the alert," the statement said.

"In consequence, the royal regiment came under fire before landing and under very intense fire at the moment of touching the beach. Although the troops rushed to the attack through a deadly cross-fire with the utmost gallantry, the regiment suffered extremely heavy casualties and only a temporary lodgment was obtained."

This failure prevented the seizing of a headland east of Dieppe, part of the plan to protect the main force which attacked the beaches of Dieppe itself.

For reasons of military security the statement was silent regarding the main objectives of the operation and the important results achieved.

AAA ELECTION SET IN COUNTY TONIGHT

Vote Is Scheduled Throughout Ohio.

Marion county farmers and their wives will elect township AAA committeemen and local administrators tonight at meetings to be held in each township at 8:30.

Meanwhile The Associated Press reported that arrangements for similar elections were completed throughout the state. This is the first AAA election open generally to women.

The Ohio farmers and farmerettes ballot for 7,000 committeemen in 1,350 townships. Men and women elected today will choose tomorrow three committeemen and two alternates for each county.

In the past, women voted in AAA elections only if they received benefit checks from the program, but the rules were liberalized this year because of the increased number of women managing farms during the war.

Women have been elected to township posts in the past, but feminine members of the county committees may be named for the first time tomorrow.

Approximately 150,000 Ohio farm owners and tenants participate in the AAA and state officials estimated that 205,000 were eligible to vote today.

Meanwhile Elmer F. Kruse, chairman of the Ohio AAA committee, urged farmers to reduce wheat acreage and plant other crops needed in the "food for victory" program.

Substitute crops will be considered a part of the wheat acreage in determining whether farmers have met wheat planting quotas, he asserted.

Kruse declared there was an oversupply of wheat and an increasing need for other crops.

Installation Set For County Legion Posts

Officers of the American Legion posts in Marion, LaRue, Prospect and Caledonia county will be installed Tuesday night at the Legion Dugout, John Duncan of Columbus, sixth district commander, will conduct the countywide installation ceremony.

A dinner at 6:30 at the Dugout will be free to all Legionnaires.

Reservations for the dinner should be made by Monday evening, officers of Bird-McClintock Post No. 103 of Marion, said today.

MAN WOUNDED IN M'GUFFEY SHOOTING

Main St. Fight Ends in Gunfire; Victim Near Death.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Sept. 18 — Rubin Conley, 42, of south of McGuffey, is in a critical condition at McKinley hospital here, and his brother-in-law, Pete Emons, 38, also of south of McGuffey is being held in the Hardin county jail as the result of a shooting at 7:45 o'clock last night on the main street of McGuffey. According to Sheriff Randall R. Clark, the shooting was the outgrowth of an argument earlier in the day.

Little hope is held for Conley's recovery. According to officials he was shot with a 410 gauge shotgun, the shot entering his left side and lodging in his lungs.

Melvin Conley, a brother, who was in a car nearby, ran to his brother after hearing the shot, and told officers that Emons threatened him with a shotgun which he got from his car. Emons, who was taken in custody at his home by officers today, he was afraid of Conley and that Conley had attempted to get into his (Emons') car. Relatives said the two had never had any previous trouble.

Conley is the father of four children, one a daughter born yesterday. Emons has a wife and seven children.

No charges have been filed against Emons who is in the county jail. The men are married.

U. S. SUBS INCREASE TOLL OF JAP SHIPS

Four More Sent Down Raises Total to 107.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—The toll taken by United States submarines on Japan's western Pacific supply lines was raised today to 107 ships sunk or damaged with the navy's report that four more enemy ships were destroyed and four others struck by torpedoes.

The navy's latest communique announced that the American undersea campaign recently sent two large freighters, a medium sized tanker and a small patrol boat to the bottom of the Pacific.

In addition, last night's communique added, a large tanker was torpedoed and left ablaze and a large transport and a medium cargo ship were damaged.

The operations, the navy said, were unrelated to the continuing campaigns in the Solomon and Aleutian islands.

American submarine successes coupled with those of U. S. planes and surface craft boosted the total number of Japanese ships sunk or damaged since Pearl Harbor to 258 as compared with 32 U. S. vessels lost, nine destroyed to prevent enemy capture and 12 damaged—a total of 53.

Army Officer Here To Plan Osgood Ceremony

Capt. C. W. Campbell, public relations officer at the Columbus Quartermaster Depot, conferred with Osgood Co. officials in Marion yesterday to plan a formal presentation ceremony soon in which the company will receive an army-navy "E" flag in recognition of outstanding war production.

It has been decided to hold a public presentation program at the company's plant, probably early next month, Capt. Campbell remained in Marion today to discuss further details of the program with the company.

Two More Concerns On Minute Man Flag List

Two more Marion concerns were certified today by the Marion county war savings committee as eligible for Minute Man flags.

They are Malo Brothers of Bartram avenue and the Marion Water Co. In both concerns 90 per cent or more of the employes are buying war bonds on the payroll deduction plan. Malo Brothers reported it has all of its employes using the plan and that all are putting 10 per cent of their pay in bonds.

The firms bring the Marion total of concerns eligible to fly the Minute Man flag to 91.

LOSS $2,100 IN BURGLARY OF MARION GRILL

"Hide Away" Thieves Blamed for Midnight Looting of Ritz Grill.

Approximately $2,100 was stolen between 12:20 and 2:46 a. m. today from the Ritz grill at 151 South Main street by a party of parties as "hide away" thieves.

City Policeman Victor Gillis, a member of the night force, discovered a rear door open while on duty in the downtown district. He immediately notified police headquarters and Capt. Louis Kirts and Patrolman Virgil Campbell, along with Patrolman Gillis, made a thorough search.

Meanwhile, Patrolman Justin Cornelly, night desk sergeant at police headquarters, summoned Joseph Fazio of 334 Forest street, manager of the cafe.

Fazio arrived shortly before police completed a thorough check. Neither Fazio nor police were able to find signs of a forced break-in and police concluded that the theft was made by one or more parties who hid in the basement before the cafe was closed at midnight.

Possible Hideout

Charles Cupani, a bartender at the cafe, showed a reporter this morning a closet in the basement which is seldom used. He said it would be ideal as a hideout for persons planning a burglary.

Shortly after the cafe closed and Manager Fazio left, the thief, or thieves, apparently obtained a bar used to fasten the rear door and forced open a drawer in the back bar. From this drawer about $120 in silver was taken.

The same bar apparently was used to force open a basement door to a store room. Just inside of the storeroom, in which are large quantities of beer, wine and gin, is a small office room. No traces of prying could be found on this door and police said apparently the door was shoved open. The lock on the door was jammed, police added.

Cabinet Rifled

From a small metal file cabinet, resembling an ordinary two-drawer office file, about $2,000 was taken. The money was hidden in a space between the second drawer and the basement floor. The same pry was used to force a lock on the cabinet, Fazio told police.

A large quantity of checks hidden with the money was not molested. Likewise, several cases of bottled whisky were not removed.

A cash drawer on the back bar also was not disturbed, police said.

The theft was partially covered by insurance, Cupani said.

2 SLIGHTLY INJURED AS TRAIN HITS TRUCK

Apple-Laden Machine Wrecked East of Marion.

Two Columbus men escaped with minor cuts and bruises when their apple-laden truck was cut in two by a New York Central freight train at 9:58 last night on Route 98, just north of the Junction of Routes 30-S and 98.

The men were in the truck when it was struck. Hundreds of pounds of apples were strewn over the crossing and up and down the right-of-way.

The driver, Sam Kossak, suffered a laceration on the left side of his head and his companion, Harry Katz, suffered small cuts and contusions of the face and head. They were taken to City hospital in the Edwin K. Smith ambulance and released after receiving treatment.

The men, their truck heavily loaded with apples, were going toward Columbus and the train was westbound.

According to the state highway patrol report, they started across the double tracks and were over the north rails when Katz saw the train coming from the east. He yelled to Kossak to step and the driver stooped the truck on the south tracks.

The westbound train, with W. Lynch of Cleveland as engineer, hit the truck almost square in the middle.

The two truckmen said they were retail produce dealers in Columbus and were making their a buying trip to orchards in the northern part of the state.

Marion Women To Make Army Surgical Dressings

Work on Thousands of Units To Begin Wednesday; Use of St. Mary Community House Donated.

Marion women next Wednesday will start one of the biggest volunteer war jobs they've been asked to do — making surgical dressings for American and Allied armed forces throughout the world.

Instructing of the 20 supervisors started today, under the direction of Mrs. Warren Sawyer, surgical dressing chairman of the Marion County Red Cross chapter. A second instruction meeting will be conducted next Monday night at 7:15.

Rev. Father William J. Spickerman of St. Mary Catholic church has given the Red Cross the use of the St. Mary community house at North Prospect street and East George street for exclusive use for the making of dressings as long as it is needed. Father Spickerman has made arrangements for the various Catholic groups that have been using the house to hold their meetings elsewhere as long as it is needed for the vital war work.

Ready to Start Work

Next Wednesday at 9 a. m. the volunteers will begin their work at the community house. Women who did not register Wednesday, yesterday or today, at the Red Cross office, may do so any time in the Y.M.C.A. building on south State street. Registrants are asked to state the days they will be able to work, and the hours.

For the present the women will work daily in three-hour shifts, 9 a. m. to 12 noon and 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. With the vast amount of work to be done there undoubtedly will be at least three evenings a week and possibly Sundays given over to the task, Mrs. Sawyer said today.

At no time will the minimum monthly quota be under 20,000 dressings and Marion county has two quotas totaling 40,200 dressings to provide within a short time.

"This isn't play, it won't be fun it's a deadly serious obligation American women have been asked to shoulder," Mrs. Sawyer said this morning.

Because the dressings must be "medically clean" but not "Surgically sterile," the volunteers must observe these rules of dress:

Wear no nail polish; it might flake off into a dressing.

Wear no jewelry with cut stones, stones, diamonds or costume stones might drop off into a dressing and, in a wound, cause complications which might cause the death of a man.

Wear either a clean wash dress or take a clean smock.

The volunteers must wear their

Giving War Relics for Salvage Gets Park Board OK

The city park war relics were freed for the salvage campaign as far as the park board has any interest in them, at a called meeting of the board last night with the president, Irving L. Dutt.

The members agreed, Mr. Dutt reported today, "that permission be granted to remove the relics at once for the much needed scrap in the hope that they will be an important cog in the victory we are all hoping for soon."

"We as members of the park board believed when this matter first came up, and still believe, that city council should have recommended to the park board that it dispose of these guns," Mr. Dutt reported. "Then I am sure the park board would have consented to having them removed at once."

"A member of the scrap salvage committee called at my home last night and said no one will give them the authority to scrap the guns in the park."

Mr. Dutt said he assured the committeeman that action would be taken immediately and that a meeting of the board was called last night.

The matter of turning the relics of other wars into scrap to fight the Axis was brought up first several months ago and at that time Mr. Dutt said he felt that city council should take the first action and then the park board would act.

Yesterday Mayor Russell C. Snare said that if some group did not ask for action by council to remove the relics he himself would ask for the legislation and present it to council at a meeting Sept. 28.

The mayor said today the park board's action removes one more step in the procedure to scrap the relics. He said he believed that legislation would be necessary, however, because the relics were presented to the city and are on public property.

There are heavy field pieces at Garfield, Lincoln and Roosevelt parks, and a torpedo at McKinley park.

New British Force Lands on Madagascar

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 18—A strong new British force has landed on the east coast of Madagascar and occupied the port of Tamatave after some French resistance, the British East Africa command announced today.

Tamatave is 190 miles northeast of Tananarive, the island's inland capital, and the first British beach head on the east coast. The new landing came after the French army had turned down British terms for an armistice.

The Tananarive radio, mouthpiece of the Vichy government, announced that Armand Annet, "governor-general," was conferring with unacceptable peace terms offered by the British but said only the choice "to fight to the end."

U.S. AIR TROOPS REACH ENGLAND

American Paratroopers Join Allied Offensive Forces in British Isles.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 18—Lean, wiry American parachute troops are swelling the striking power of the United States armed forces for a blow against Hitler with invasion exercises above the green hills of this island.

Although these troops have been in England for some time and their booted uniforms have become a familiar sight in London streets, their presence was kept secret abroad until it was announced officially today from the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of the AEF in the European theater.

They are commanded by Lieut. Col. Elson D. Raff of New York City, and joined forces with British parachute troops for training here after a preliminary course in Georgia.

ESCAPED PRISONER BELIEVED TRAPPED

One Caught After Pair Kidnap Prison Official's Wife.

By The Associated Press

ASHLAND, Ky., Sept. 18—One of two young trusties who kidnaped the wife of a federal reformatory official and escaped from a Chillicothe, O., institution was believed trapped on a rocky, wooded hill here today.

The other was arrested shortly after their arrival here last night when their victim, Mrs. R. W. Meier, 31, wife of the institution's chief clerk, forced the car to the curb and screamed an alarm at a filling station. She escaped unharmed.

Associate Warden Allen T. Shank identified the pair as Robert William Cote, 17, of Willimantic, Conn., who was caught, and Jack K. Triplett, 20, of Cromona, Ky., both serving two-year auto theft terms.

Federal bureau of investigation agents said the pair would be prosecuted under federal law.

Triplett was believed by officers to be hiding on a hill separating downtown Ashland from a southern residential section. The hill was surrounded by FBI men, police, deputies and volunteers.

Shenk said at Chillicothe that Triplett was to have been released Sept. 21 and that Cote had been granted a parole and would have been freed in a "short time."

He said the pair, working as trusty yard boys, went to the Meier residence yesterday afternoon and abducted Mrs. Meier after inducing her three-year-old

TWO WEDGES WITHIN CITY ARE WIPED OUT

Russians, with Backs to Volga, Counterattack with Savage Fury.

By The Associated Press

Taking a stand with the precipitous banks of the Volga at their very backs, the defenders of Stalingrad have counter-attacked and wiped out two enemy wedges within the city in a supreme, last-ditch effort to save the great manufacturing center from the Germans, the Russians said today.

The Germans precipitated this bitter and thus far successful Russian counter-action by rushing into the city proper from the northwestern outskirts, and pushing almost to the cliffs overhanging the west bank of the Volga.

With no choice between counter-attack and surrender, the Russians took their stand.

A terrible battle flamed along the three-lined avenues leading to the riverfront. The first German units which had spread through the city, pointed by tanks, were forced back. The struggle continued in mounting violence with the enemy trying to fortify himself in the northwestern fringe of Stalingrad.

Two successive German efforts to take Stalingrad by storm were reported repulsed in the last 24 hours.

The first penetration into the city's streets, announced in last night's Russian communique, has been repulsed. The mid-day bulletin said that two battalions of enemy infantry again rushed into one of the streets but were forced to retreat after severe hand-to-hand fighting.

German dead and the hulks of burned-out Nazi tanks littered the streets, dispatches said, as the Russians swept the Nazi tide back to the North.

Announcement Doesn't Come

While Berlin remained silent on a previously trumpeted "special announcement from Hitler's headquarters," which failed to materialize on schedule last night, The Soviet command announced at mid-day:

"On the northwest outskirts of Stalingrad, our troops repulsed enemy tank and infantry thrusts.

"In another sector, two battalions of enemy infantry broke into one of the streets of the city but were met with concentrated machinegun and automatic rifle fire.

"In hand-to-hand fighting which followed, the Germans were routed and forced to retreat."

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, said the retreating Germans hurriedly set up anti-tank obstacles and firing points to block the Russian counter-offensive after they had been driven back, often at bayonet point, yard by yard and house by house.

Overhead, waves of 80 to 100 German bombers continued to hammer the battle-scarred Volga metropolis, but 19 were reported shot down by Soviet anti-aircraft gunners and out-numbered Russian fliers.

Although the situation remained grave it seemed clear that the Russians had broken up at least the first phase of Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's climactic assault. Berlin hinted on Wednesday that Stalingrad's fall was expected within 24 hours.

Today, however, Hitler's field headquarters made only the broad general claim that Nazi troops had scored "further successes" in the battle for Stalingrad and again emphasized the "embittered" nature of the fighting.

There was no repetition of previous Berlin claims that German troops were thrusting deeper into the city's streets.

Russian headquarters said that as darkness fell over the city last night "all detachments which had penetrated our positions were repulsed."

Strike on Other Fronts

Elsewhere on the long battle-front, the Russians were reported to have struck into the German left flank in the Voronezh sector, 300 miles north of Stalingrad, and beat off Nazi assaults in the Mozdok sector in the central Caucasus.

Dispatches said the Russians recaptured a Nazi-occupied settlement around Voronezh, while in the Mozdok sector the Russians declared they reoccupied a village and "annihilated about 300 Hitlerites."

Other developments:

Air War—Southeast Europe underwent an attack of jitters last night, marked by an air-raid scare in Sofia, Bulgaria, and reports that mysterious balloons trailing explosives were drifting over Hungary.

Bad weather kept the RAF's big bombers from attacking Germany proper last night, but planes of the British coastal com-

G.O.P. Strength in Maine Raises Problem of Vote Turnout for Democrats

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 14—The strength shown by the Republicans in the Maine elections Monday emphasizes again the importance of one special factor in the political situation this year.

That factor is turnout.

In Maine the turnout of voters at the polls was the lowest since 1932, and in the Democratic areas, it was the first time since 1920 that it has been below 50 per cent.

Dr. Gallup

When turnout is low, the Republicans stand to benefit. A recent prediction of this writer, based on the turnout in the primaries, was that the Democrats may face a tough fight to keep control of the house.

In a recent report the Institute estimated that if the fall elections were held at that time, the Republicans would likely gain 21 seats in the House.

Hope for Democrats

However, the Democrats may take comfort in comparing this year's Maine results with those of 1940.

The Republican vote for governor this year is only three points above that in 1940, percentagewise. That is why, despite a heavy Republican vote in Maine in September, the Democrats in November can expect that their number of seats in the House of Representatives.

It also was true that in the First Congressional District of Maine this year, the Democrats, although defeated, polled a higher percentage of the district vote at any time since 1936. However, that is largely because the Democratic candidate was Lucius F. Brann, a popular figure in the state, who in previous elections has always run ahead of the Democratic state ticket.

Roosevelt Still Popular

Political commentators will be speculating on the question whether the strong Republican vote in Maine means a lot of public confidence in President Roosevelt as the nation's chief executive.

Interviews conducted by the Institute in Maine before the election does not sustain any such conclusion.

It was found that the great majority of voters who said they were planning to vote for a Republican senator, a Republican governor, and a Republican congressman, nevertheless indicated on the same ballot that they approve in general of the way Roosevelt is handling his job as President.

Factors Affecting Turnout

There are many factors conspiring to reduce the turnout of voters at the polls this year. Some of these factors were operating in Maine.

People are leaving their communities to take war jobs in other areas. In numerous instances they have not resided long enough in their new locality to be eligible to vote or have not taken the trouble to find out whether they are eligible to vote. Voting by absentee ballot in the communities where they used to live is cumbersome.

Most of the migrants are workers, who previously voted Democratic. Hence, migration tends to hurt the Democrats.

Moreover, the nation's young men, whom Institute polls have found to be predominately Democratic in their political sympathies, are going into the armed forces. That, again, is a factor which will tend to lower the turnout among the Democratic rank and file.

A Promise for Tomorrow

By ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Over Bart's shoulder, Julie saw Pete!

YESTERDAY: Julie Hamilton is a doctor and a good one. She is good enough, in fact, to convince patients that she is not what she looks—a romantic. But Pete Fowler is one patient she can do nothing for, although she had rather hoped that all the rest of her patients. Pete is doing a great work in the shipyards, but he wants to be in the Air Corps. And Julie wants Pete.

CHAPTER TWO

Wrong Time To Kiss

JULIE didn't see Pete again until the night of the Army-Navy show. But for her father's sharp warning about dulling her mind with overwork she probably would have refused Bart Rogers' invitation to cocktails before the show and the supper dance at the Country club afterward.

Bart was late, as usual. So Julie had plenty of time to check the effect of her slinking gold jersey dinner dress and the soft sable-dyed ermine of the coat that had been Dad's last Christmas present. The gold touched highlights in her brown hair, and the coat exactly matched her eyes.

She didn't look exactly—spinsterish, she smiled wryly at the hall mirror. At least not yet! She actually looked enough unlike a competent physician to suit even Pete!

And Bart Rogers. He said so twice before they left the house and again in the car.

"You're a knockout tonight, Julie. Nobody'd ever guess you'd as soon operate on a guy as look at him."

Party

He guided the expensive car with expert carelessness through snail-slow downtown traffic, out the broad tree-shaded Sequoia boulevard to the huge, rambling Kelland town house, still the show place to Santa Felice.

Despite the fact that the living room was the largest in town, it was already jammed. Dawn's cocktail parties were always huge, elaborate, and just a little hectic.

"Lord what a mob," Bart muttered when Julie returned from the powder room to meet him at the foot of the broad, curving staircase.

"Well, shall we plunge?" He pulled her hand through his arm, smiled down at her. "I'm a damned fool to expose myself to all this competition. Promise me you won't fall for a uniform!"

"Silly. Besides, you'll be in uniform yourself pretty soon."

"Darling!" Dawn greeted them as she drew nearer, trailing two captains and a major in her wake. "I'm so terribly glad you could come. You look marvelous, Julie—only so terribly tired darling. Doesn't she, Bart?" She laid scarlet-tipped fingers on Bart's arm, tilted her dazzingly blond head so she could look up from her petite four feet eleven to Bart's not-so-towering five feet ten.

But Pete Saw

"If she isn't tired, she should be," Bart agreed. "She's been taking temperatures and soothing fevered brows since five this morning."

"I've never felt better," Julie said crisply, reminding herself that Dawns little catty tricks were really not vicious.

"Really. Oh, that's wonderful darling." She moved off then, an exquisite dresden doll in her fine blue mousseline that matched her amazing eyes and rippled full from her tiny waist.

"Gee she's tiny and frail, isn't she?" Bart murmured, watching her.

Tiny, Julie agreed silently, but about as frail as dynamite.

"She hasn't changed a bit since the day she graduated from high school." Bart went on reminiscently.

Julie glanced at him, caught back the reply that trembled on the tip of her tongue. Bart wasn't joking. She smiled inwardly.

"I wonder why she hasn't married?" Julie thought aloud as she accepted the frosted mocktail Bart handed her. "She all but said she'd be the first."

"Maybe she's never loved anyone enough," Bart said significantly, reaching for Julie's hand.

"That doesn't seem possible. We all thought she'd be engaged by the time she got to Southampton on that Grand Tour she made."

Bart nodded. "Wasn't there some rumor about a Danish count she met on the boat?"

"Italian. I think it was Amalfo de Something. She wrote about him from Cannes. But nothing came of it I guess."

"She's probably glad of that now. Well, here's to love—our love!" Bart touched his glass to hers, met her glance gayly, confidently as he slipped an arm around her waist.

Julie's smile responded and she flushed under Bart's frank possessiveness. But when she tried to draw away, his arm tightened.

"Don't be like that, Julie," and behind the sharpness in his voice she detected real hurt. "I love you. Can't you remember?" Then he kissed her, quickly, warmly.

But then—over his shoulder—the saw Pete! Scarlet flooded into her cheeks as she realized that he'd been watching for several moments, a curious smile curving his lips. In the instant she met the baffling blue shaft of his glance, she felt her heart stop.

Allied Raid on Tobruk Smashed Large Stores of Axis Supplies

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—Tons of explosives blew axis supplies, batteries and fortifications sky high in the British sea and air raid on Tobruk last Sunday night, it was reported today by George Palmer of the United Press, who is back in Alexandria from the expedition which ended with Larry Allen of The Associated Press believed to be a prisoner in Italian hands.

The United Press, declining the advantage given it by Allen's misfortune, made Palmer's story available to The Associated Press.

Palmer and Allen were the only American correspondents accredited to the British Mediterranean fleet and Palmer was the only one to return from the storming of Tobruk.

"As we got away," he reported, "I saw a small fire at the stern of the destroyer Sikh, which was sunk in the operation.

Allen Aboard Ship.

"The Associated Press correspondent, Larry Allen, was aboard the Sikh."

The Italian radio has announced that an American correspondent was captured in the Tobruk operation but has not made known his name.

Since the Sikh — whose loss along with her sister destroyer Zulu has been announced by the British—went down with the operation still not finished, Allen presumably was able to swim ashore or was saved by Italian rescue crews. The Italians have reported picking up men out of the water from the expedition's sunken ships.

Palmer said the naval forces steamed into Tobruk after the port had been put through a five-and-one-half-hour deluge of bombs by British and American bombers funneling their explosives into a small area.

"From the top deck of a small British motor launch yesterday morning I saw a large force of motor torpedoes dash into Tobruk harbor on a mission to destroy the stores of oil, gasoline and other supplies which Marshal Rommel assembled there," Palmer reported in a delayed dispatch filed on Tuesday.

Palmer said the Britain squadron approached Tobruk about 2 p. m. Monday with loads of explosives and demolition crews and began pouring them ashore with harbor guns guarding them and the destroyers pumping shells into the enemy concentrations to cover the landing parties.

"The anti-aircraft guns opened up," he related. "The sky looked like a huge Christmas tree, jammed with colored lights, as green, red, white and blue tracers from enemy machine-guns and heavier shells from our warships filled the air."

Rent Questions Answered

Following is one of a series of questions and answers pertaining to landlords and tenants in the Marion county federal rent control area. Released by John K. Hartman, federal rent director, the series covers the scope of rent control, setting of maximum rents by dates, adjustments in maximum rents, services, leases, evictions, special relationships between landlord and tenant, and penalties.

• • •

Federal regulations place a ceiling over all residential rents. In fixing the ceiling the government does not attempt the colossal task of inspecting the living quarters of each of America's 16 million rent-paying families and setting a maximum rent for each place. Instead, the price administrator selects a "maximum-rent date" for rent-control area and directs that, as a general principle, rents must not exceed the rents in effect on that date.

Q. What is a maximum-rent date?

A. This date marks the level above which rents in general can not go.

• • •

Q. How is the date determined?

A. As far as practical, the date is chosen to reflect rental conditions before "defense activities shall have resulted, or threatened to result in increases in rents...."

• • •

Q. What is the maximum-rent date?

A. It is date set by the price administrator in issuing rent regulations in placing a ceiling on rents. Here for example the date is March 1, 1942.

• • •

Q. What does that date mean?

A. It means that the tenant must not pay any higher rent for his quarters than was paid for the same quarters on March 1, 1942.

• • •

Q. If the rent was $32 a month on March 1, 1942, is that the highest that now can be charged?

A. That is correct.

• • •

Q. If the rent was $32 on March 1, 1942, and has been increased since then to $38, how much should the tenant pay?

A. The maximum is $32 and that is all the tenant can pay.

• • •

Q. Will the tenant receive a rebate covering the amount he paid over the maximum up to the time the regulations went into effect?

A. No, there will be no rebate, but henceforth he will pay no more than the maximum.

• • •

Q. Although the rent was $32 on March 1, 1942, the present tenant moved in some months later and has always paid $38. What is the maximum rent?

A. The maximum is still only $32. It doesn't matter who paid the rent on the maximum-rent date. The rent must not exceed the amount charged on that date.

• • •

Q. How will the tenant know what the rent was on March 1, 1942, if he has moved since then?

A. He can learn this directly from his landlord or through the registration statement that the landlord files with the local rent director. False information in this statement will subject the landlord to criminal penalties.

• • •

Q. What is to be done if landlord and tenant cannot agree or determine what the rent was March 1, 1942?

A. The Rent Director acts to fix the maximum rent.

• • •

Q. Is not the landlord entitled to some additional rent if he has substantially changed the property by a major capital improvement since the maximum rent date?

A. Yes, the regulations set up machinery for handling exceptional cases like this.

• • •

Q. How is the maximum rent determined if the house was vacant March 1, 1942?

A. In that case the last rent charged in the two months prior to March 1, 1942 is the maximum rent.

• • •

Q. Suppose the house was vacant during those two months, too. What happens then? And what happens if the owner occupied the house and did not rent it until some time after March 1, 1942?

A. In either case the rent can not exceed the first rent charged for the quarters after March 1, 1942. However, as a protection to the tenant against an excessive charge, the landlord must file a special report with the local rent director in these cases and the rent director may reduce the maximum rent if the charge was out of line with what comparable housing accommodations were bringing on March 1, 1942.

• • •

Q. What is the maximum rent for a newly constructed house or apartment first rented after the maximum rent date?

A. If the housing accommodations were rented for the effective date of the regulation, the maximum rent is the first rent charged to the occupant of the new quarters. But here, again, the landlord must report the case to the rent director, who has authority to adjust the maximum rent to the level of the maximum rent date.

• • •

Q. Suppose the house wasn't completed until after federal rent control became effective?

A. At least 15 days before the place is to be rented, the owner must petition the local rent director to set the maximum rent.

• • •

Q. On what does the director base the rent?

A. He bases the maximum on the rent for comparable houses on March 1, 1942. He also must make allowance for increases in cost of construction since that date.

• • •

Q. What about houses or apartments constructed under government priorities for materials?

A. In that case the maximum rent is the first rent charged but in no event can it be more than the schedule of rents which the war production board required the builder to submit before the board would grant the priority rating.

• • •

Q. What control is there over rents charged in government housing projects?

A. In all housing projects, whether owned or operated by federal, state or local government, the rents must conform to those charged in the area on the maximum-rent date.

• • •

Q. Does the Rent Director have authority to set maximum rents for government housing projects?

A. Yes.

MANPOWER JOB GOES TO PRESIDENT OF GE

Nelson Names Aid To Watch Labor Needs.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—The task of assembling the 318-ton pieces of the war production picture for a twice-a-week scrutiny of armed services' needs fell today to a newly created production committee headed by Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Co.

The committee was created by the war production board last night and charged, Chairman Donald Nelson said, with "seeing to it that programs and schedules for all phases of our war effort are met."

In effect, another WPB source explained, the new unit obtains a position from which the entire war production picture can be surveyed continually to perceive the diversified needs of the army, the air force, the navy and the maritime commission.

Twice each week, the committee will bring together the military agencies, the maritime commission and WPB for a check-up of war production. Extra sessions may be called when necessary.

Wilson, who will serve on a dollar-a-year basis as vice chairman of WPB, will have opportunity, WPB said, to contact responsible heads of the fighting forces and the maritime commission to get up-to-the-minute information on the needs of each agency and the overall supply situation for meeting those ends.

Serving with Wilson are Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, commanding general of the army services of supply; Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, commanding general of the materiel command, army air force headquarters; Vice Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, navy director of materiel and procurement, and Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, vice chairman of the maritime commission.

DELAWARE, Sept. 18 — Miss Marjorie Beeney of Ostrander, chief clerk in the Delaware city-county health department office, has resigned to accept a position at the Scioto Ordnance Plant at Marion. The resignation was effective Tuesday. At a special board meeting Tuesday Mrs. Ruth Bailey of Delaware was employed to succeed Miss Beeney.

Election Held By M. E. Church Group

Others elected for the new year are Miss Virginia Ruth, vice president; Mrs. Howard Mitchell, secretary; Kenneth Becker, treasurer; Miss Mary Merhaffey, first commission chairman; Miss Esther Click and Bernard Brooks, second commission chairmen; Mrs. Robert Rice, pianist; Miss Mary Ellen Kerr, assistant pianist. A cabinet meeting to plan the work for the year will be conducted Sept. 30 at 8 p. m. at the parsonage on South Prospect street.

W. Va. G. O. P. Nominee for Senate Undetermined

By The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 18 — Forty-six days have passed since West Virginia's primary election, but the name of the Republican U. S. senate nominee today remained hidden in a mass of recounts and legal controversies.

Outcome of the contest became more of a question this week with a recount of the Aug. 4 votes in Kanawha county—the state's most populous—narrowing to 83 votes the lead of Chapman Revercomb, of Charleston, over Raymond J. Funkhouser, of Shepherdstown.

Subject to additional recounts, the tally today gave Revercomb 47,421 votes to 47,338 for Funkhouser.

The contest, closest for a major office in the mountain state's history, may not be decided for weeks, but Secretary of State W. S. O'Brien has said there will be a nominee on Sept. 30.

The man with the most votes that day, O'Brien said, will be certified to ballot commissioners in the 55 counties.

Speeding production in plants that are arming America • in a job in which Ohio Oil Company Engineers and Marathon Lubricants are daily playing their part

How can the proper lubricant, back in a midwest war plant, help put more shells in the hands of American marines on our battle fronts?

How can the choice of the right oil in an airplane parts plant help put more fighters and bombers in the air — faster?

Perhaps this will give you some idea . . .

On the morning, high-speed machines that turn out shells in a midwest plant, in full war harness, to attempt production, every 8 hours, as required the "gang," an instrument working part of those machines stubbed a toe.

Ohio Oil Company lubrication engineers were called in. A newly developed Marathon Cutting Oil was put on the job. And, as this is written, it has been unnecessary to grind "cups" in 17 days' operation.

Or take another case, in a large airplane parts plant . . .

By changing to a new Marathon Cutting Oil, developed for the job, work speed of machine tools was doubled . . . the time required for an important operation cut in half, spoilage reduced, and life lengthened.

These are not isolated cases. They are typical of the job Ohio Oil Company Lubrication Engineers and research men are doing, today, to help America speed up production . . . help speed the day of victory.

BRICKER APPEALS FOR FARM HELP

Housewives and Public Asked To Lend Hand.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 17—Gov. Bricker asked Ohio housewives and high school students today to help harvest a bountiful fruit and vegetable crop threatened by a farm labor shortage.

Bricker urged school officials to release students willing to help with the harvest. Housewives and others volunteering their services were asked to contact local offices of the U. S. employment service, canneries or farmers.

"Everything possible must be done to save these crops," the governor declared. "I appeal to high school students, to housewives and anyone who can possibly leave regular duties to answer this immediate call for service."

State Sen. Fred Adams of Bowling Green reported to the governor yesterday that much of the tomato crop in northwestern Ohio will be lost unless help is made available quickly.

Twenty-two canning factories in Ohio have asked the Ohio canning association for workers. Individual needs ranged from 30 to 150 persons.

Cincinnati school officials announced that students volunteering as tomato pickers would be dismissed from classes at 2 p. m. daily.

Know Your Air Raid Warden?

Civilian Defense Officials Hope You Get Acquainted with Him Before Blackout.

Max Marion found an actual blackout last night a few wardens-residents of the city were asked ready to evaluate themselves what they'd do in air wardens.

The volunteer responsibility in a situation was pinpointed by Lt. Earl Ruhlman, chief air raid warden, as the resident.

"Total participation was one of the important features of the new Marion civilian defense in blackouts which city council passed last Monday night.

"It is as important for everyone to know his warden as it is for the warden to know his duties and responsibilities," Mr. Ruhlman said.

Persons who do not know their wardens should call the Civilian Defense Control Center, 3211. Saturday or Monday between 9 and 11:30 a. m. and 1 and 4:30 p. m.

Residents should contact their wardens and learn what the civilians responsibilities in a blackout will be, he said.

Next Tuesday night there will be a "must attend" citywide meeting of air raid wardens at Central Junior High school. All points of blacking out Marion will be discussed and specific instructions will be given. Duties of wardens will be outlined.

"This is one of the most important wardens' sessions ever called, because of the important role the air raid warden performs during a blackout," Mr. Ruhlman said.

Last night Ray Lodwig, leader of Precinct A, Fourth Ward, called a meeting of his wardens and had a 100 per cent turnout. Tonight Frank Robinson, captain of Ward 5 will conduct a meeting of all of his wardens at the Navy club rooms.

Officers "Fight" All Day and Then Spend Evening Studying Errors

By WILLIAM F. BONI
Wide World Military Editor

WITH U. S. ARMY ON CALIFORNIA DESERT TRAINING MANEUVERS, Sept. 18—Next to the actual tactical exercises, the post-problem critique is the most interesting part of army maneuvers—and possibly even more instructive than the actual exercises.

It is here, from the commanding general and his staff, that you hear what they were trying to do, by what means and how completely they succeeded, and in what respects the general's judgment or the actions of his subordinates let him down. There is no mincing of words when there has been failure, no withholding of praise for a job well done.

The officers meet after supper, on a patch of creosote-covered desert. Overhead the stars are thick and bright, the milky way a mass of silver light banding the sky from one deep-blue horizon to the other.

Before them is a platform, rigged especially for this occasion, with an upright board at the back to which a huge map of the maneuver area has been attached. Two spotlights bathe this impromptu stage and the first two rows of officers—generals and colonels, seated in chairs in accordance with their rank. Behind them the lower ranks squat on the sand, ranged in rough semi-circles that fade out into the darkness.

Get Set for Session

There is a muttering of voices, a final lighting of cigarets, and in the background the lights of supply trucks flick past on the highway. A high-hailing freight roars east just beyond, the blast of its engine momentarily drowning all other sound.

Col. Roy Blount, deep-chested, deep-voiced chief of staff for the Blue army, strides to the stage, outlines the mission that was assigned the Blue forces, introduces Col. John Meade, G-2 for maneuver director headquarters and here to represent the opposing Red army.

The Reds, being highly mobile, moved fast, he explains, and vigorously. Before the end of the first day, all their reserves had been employed. Both sides, says Col. Meade, reverting for the moment to his neutral status, should have made more use of aerial photography.

He is followed by Major Joseph B. Haskell, the Blues' keen-faced intelligence chief. To desert newcomers, his remarks are particularly interesting. "In this country there's nothing subtle or hidden by the terrain. Lack of vegetation makes any vehicle stand out as if it were laid on a table. For that reason considerations of terrain are tremendously important."

Intelligence reports as a rule came in rapidly enough, he says, "but the preparation and particularly the wording of messages must be done with more care, so that the recipient can place himself practically in the mind of the sender."

Reviews the Action

Next is Col. Peter C. Bullard, son of a World War I general and operations (G-3) chief. With the aid of maps, he reviews the actions, sums up the exercise with "neither side won—neither expected to win—it was an excellent opportunity for training."

Col. Wayne Smith (G-4, supply) takes over, draws the first laugh of the evening. "The world's only perfect supply plan belongs to Santa Claus—and even he needs requisitions to get the job done properly. So does the good Lord, for he said, 'Ask and ye shall receive'."

A few figures outline the size of his task—80,000 gallons of water moved in 24 hours, 800 lbs. of ammunition needed to supply just one rifle platoon, 18 freight cars for an armored division. "In general," he says, "our supply plan is adequate, but more important it's not hidebound. We'll try anything that will work."

Col. Gustav Braun, in charge of Personnel (G-1), reports there was little for his section to do—few stragglers ("because of the heat they all must have hitched rides on trucks"), only 15 prisoners of war ("two officers, 10 men and three peeps.")

Maj. Gen. Jask W. Heard explains the part his division played in the problem. He is a bit critical of the umpires, that being the chief headache of all maneuvers, but declares the division "operated to my entire satisfaction."

The ground-air support command's spokesman is Col. Richard Lee, who emphasizes that, in calling for air support, ground units must give more specific information as to the targets they want attacked. "If the target to be attacked is a moving one, something should be given the air force as to its composition, size and rate and direction of movement."

Finally Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., corps commander who hosts the Blues, voices special pleasure that "most of the greatest improvements has been in communication. In maneuvers less than a year ago communications were a pain in the neck. You ran into problems working with guys who had no more experience than the men we had in 1941. I was in constant radio and almost telephone communication with my division and artillery commander."

In closing, he declared: "Our officers have a great responsibility. The American soldier is the most docile and the most willing in the world. He can do anything, but only if he is told properly what to do. Thus in this new army each day we must give something of ourselves in giving orders to our men. . . we can build a unique army, and we are building one."

18 TO END RADIO COURSE TONIGHT

Adult Group Completes 32-Week Training Period.

Eighteen persons will be graduated from an advanced radio class for adults in a program tonight at Harding High school. They will have completed 32 weeks of training in two separate courses. Five others who have completed a 16-week beginners' course will receive certificates for the progress they have made.

Lieut. Williams of Fort Hayes, in charge of the engineering science and management defense training program in the Fifth Service Command, and four other officers from Columbus are expected to attend tonight's event.

The school, part of the defense training program sponsored by the government, opened Feb. 2 for the first period, June 2 for the second, and has been held five nights a week.

At 5:30 there was to be a demonstration of radio outfits the classes have made in the physics laboratory of Harding High. A dinner at Hotel Harding will follow at 7 and at 8:05 speeches by Dr. H. E. Nold of Ohio State university, director of the defense training classes in the state, E. E. Holt, superintendent of Marion city schools, and Louis Michel, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, will be broadcast over radio station WMRN. Certificates will then be awarded.

WHITE SLAVERS ARE SENTENCED

Four Given Prison Terms of 7 to 12 Years on Pleas of Guilty.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18—Four white slave traders today were cut off from lucrative operations extending into five states by prison sentences ranging from seven to 12 years.

Suddenly pleading guilty in the fourth day of their federal court trial on charges of conspiring to operate a white slave ring and transporting girls for prostitution, the four were scathingly denounced by Judge Emerich B. Freed as "the lowest form of humanity."

Sentenced to 12 years was Louis Peter Morek, 51-year-old Clevelander described by Assistant U. S. District Attorney Roy C. Scott as head of the ring.

One Gets Seven Years

Carl (Ted) Brueil, 36, of Canton, O., and Jack Johnson, 38, of Amsterdam, N. Y., and New York City, were received 10-year sentences and Frank Brueil, Carl's 28-year-old brother, was sentenced to a seven-year term. All will be committed to a federal penitentiary, probably next week.

Their guilty pleas interrupted a sordid testimony concerning threats against the prostitutes they transported, and left a Lorain woman—Vera Sill, alleged operator of a White Slave "trading post"—to stand trial alone.

During the four days of testimony, Vivian Clark, an attractive blond, related that Carl Brueil induced her to become a prostitute and placed her in "call houses" and brothels in New York, Akron and Canton, O. She said he had repeatedly threatened her.

Another pretty 21-year-old witness, permitted to mask her identity behind the "professional" name of Joyce Foley, testified Morel had threatened to "scar me up so no other man would want me" if she left him. She said she "worked" for Morel in New York City, Cleveland, Sandusky, Akron, Lorain, Canton and Zanesville, O., after he had paid her $500 hospital bill.

Turn Over Earnings

Both witnesses told of turning over large sums of money to the defendants. "Miss Foley" estimated her New York earnings at $600 weekly and Miss Clark said she averaged about $125 a week at Canton.

Scott said the sudden end of the men's trial prevented him from calling two more material witnesses—Jean Johnson, wife of a defendant, and girl who, Scott asserted, turned over $15,000 in brothel earnings to the four.

District Attorney Don C. Miller and FBI agents reported the ring's operations centered at a Canton barbecue stand, and reaches into Saratoga Springs, N. Y., in the racing season; Miami, Fla., in the winter, Glen Falls, N. Y., Meadville, Pa., and Little Rock, Ark.

DOGS SLAUGHTER MARION CO. SHEEP

Claims for Tully Twp. Raids Now Total $536.

A slaughter of Marion county sheep that has cost not only $536 in claims but the loss of valuable wool needed for the war, was reported today by Elmer Ullom, county dog warden.

The attacks started July 29 and were still going on last night, although no sheep were killed in a raid on a flock owned by Mervin Gardner of Tully township.

All the raids have been in Tully township, county Crawford county and a few in Delaware, apparently by the same dogs.

Warden Ullom this afternoon went to Morrow county in search of a big black and tan hound dog believed to be the ringleader of the raids that already have resulted in seven dogs being shot. Mr. Ullom shot at the dog last night and believes he may have injured it, but it escaped into Morrow county. A white collie also has been seen in the flocks.

Mr. Ullom today issued a warning to owners of dogs in the county to tie them up or keep them fenced and penned, as he is out to find runaways.

Wednesday night the dogs killed seven lambs at the Clarence Clark farm in the northeastern part of the township. Mr. Price's flock of sheep has been hard hit by the killer dogs.

Edgar Flint of Caledonia has been deputized to assist Ullom in catching the dogs responsible for the raids.

ALLIED PLANES HIT JAP BASE AT BUNA

Supply Center Is Blasted To Weaken Ground Attack.

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Sept. 18—While Australian troops battled Japanese forces in the New Guinea jungles only 32 miles by air line from Port Moresby, allied ... planes struck a crushing blow yesterday at the enemy's supply base at Buna, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Approximately 35,000 pounds of explosive and incendiary fire were loosed by the allied raiders in a concentrated attack, destroying or damaging 25 Japanese barges and setting fires at supply dumps which were visible for 25 miles, a communique said.

The assault on Buna was delivered while a new drive of pressure on the Australian forces locked in combat with the Japanese near the village of Kokoda on the southern slopes of the lofty Owen Stanley mountains.

The fighting in that area which the Japanese launched Wednesday after a swift eight-mile advance apparently had abated somewhat in intensity, the allied communique describing the action as sporadic.

Scrap Metal Is More Than Junk

THE NOTION that the steel industry can be kept going with junk will have to be knocked on the head officially sooner or later. The war-swelled scrap metal urgently needed to maintain steel production includes junk, to be sure, but more than junk is going to be needed. The metal resources of the nation will have to be mustered.

All kinds of metal not classified as junk must be added to the scrap supply, scrap being one of the basic commodities used in steel making like iron ore and limestone. Eventually, the distinction between junk and metal might be ruled out. The tons of iron and steel now immobilized in ornamental fences, for instance, will have to be mobilized for war.

That part of the war experience. It is something that has been done by the nation's people, not by choice but necessity.

Does Parity Confuse You?

IT IS NOT the farmers' fault that so few persons understand parity. Farmers don't understand it themselves. Before too much needless confusion is caused by the world's use in connection with the attempt to stabilize farm wages and farm prices, it would be a blessing if one misunderstanding could be cleared up.

Parity is not price fixing or price freezing. Under it, farm prices may fluctuate widely. Parity is a ratio between farm and non-farm prices, based on things as they were in 1909-14. In brief, it is a formula for keeping farmers geared to the national level of prosperity, instead of letting them depend on catch-as-catch-can methods.

As used in the attempt to stabilize wages and farm prices, parity will place no permanent ceiling on the cost of agricultural commodities in the months to come. In the case of some commodities, its first effect may be to increase their cost to consumers. Thereafter, it will enable farmers to take advantage of any increase in the cost of living.

This is the same guarantee that President Roosevelt has given wage earners in his outline of what wage and farm price stabilization should do. Wages would be made adjustable under some kind of executive formula like that now used in the steel industry, stabilization, not freezing. There is no justice for the charge that parity would give farmers any exclusive privilege.

So Now We Have a Rubber Czar

AS RUBBER CZAR of the United States, William M. Jeffers must wish for some instantaneous hocus-pocus to take himself and his countrymen off the spot. But of course there isn't any.

His job will have to be done the hard way, like everything else about the war. First, rubber already in existence must be made to last as long as possible. Second, a new source of supply must be created.

Saving the rubber already on hand calls for universal cooperation. So far there hasn't been any. Almost a year after the Japanese created the rubber emergency, a wishy-washy government has decided to follow a special committee's recommendation that something be done about it. At long last, the Barney Oldfields and road-racer boys are going to be encouraged to behave.

Mr. Jeffers must find a way to make his countrymen realize that when the Japanese opened their attack last December they aimed to paralyze the transportation system of the United States by cutting off its rubber supply. The attack was part of a bold strategy for beating our ears off—and it could happen. This isn't a moving picture, but the real thing.

Good luck to Brother Jeffers. His new job is going to make his former specialty, railroading, look like a vacation. A lot depends on his countrymen of course—the people who up to now have resolutely taken the attitude that rubber conservation is a fine thing for the other fellow.

It Could Have Been Skipped

REAR ADMIRAL W. H. P. BLANDY'S assurance after an inspection tour that the United States has turned the balance of power in the western Pacific recalls a sad incident in current history. The admiral was stating an opinion in reply to a question, but not long ago other naval spokesmen were going out of their way to tell the American public that Japan didn't even have a chance to get the upper hand. Naturally, what they said was accepted as the truth, just as Admiral Blandy's current appraisal will be accepted. Then came the attack on Pearl Harbor. The reason for taking Admiral Blandy seriously is the navy's demonstration of ability at Midway, the Coral sea and the Solomon islands. As long as the navy can produce deeds, it can skip words. In fact, when they recall some of the words spoken just before last Dec. 7, the admirals must wish for nothing but deeds from now on. That's what the public would prefer, too.

News Behind the News

Nelson's Fuel Oil Cut Conspicuously Lacks Any Comment by Ickes.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—Donald Nelson's announcement, [illegible] of petroleum fuel oil cuts [illegible] and east, [illegible] and any recommendation by [illegible] Coordinator Ickes [illegible] purports to tell [illegible] to talk about [illegible] Nevertheless one or [illegible] arguments kept out of his [illegible] Both lots [illegible] as evidence.

Mr. Nelson appointed a three-man board to decide on what should be done about fuel oil, as distinct from gasoline, and from Ickes. On this board were Mr. Ickes' aide Hedrick Smith, the price stabilizer (not Leon Henderson) and Under Secretary Patterson.

Mr. Ickes is on vacation, and his place was taken by his assistant Buie. If Buie is one of those who may be certain that a proper explanation would be a help in the announcement, their opposition may be confidently assumed.

This board is not the only surprising circumstance of the order. The announcement lacked any convincing evidence of justification for the step.

Nelson's Explanation

Mr. Nelson's assistants explain it and seek to justify it, unofficially, as a safeguard against a hard winter. They concede such a drastic step might not be necessary if the weather is mild, but they cannot take a chance on that.

To many an oil man, however, it seems Mr. Nelson took in more territory for rationing than is absolutely needed to furnish additional fuel oils for the east in any kind of winter. As they see it, if cars are taken off the mid-west runs, it will no doubt be necessary for some mide-east regions to get their winter oil by truck, but certainly not as many regions as Mr. Nelson has specified.

Few people will now attempt to criticize technically an order which must have been prepared on the basis of the superior knowledge of Nelson's experts (minus Ickes and Davies.)

At the same time, the tone and lack of reasonable explanation of-fered at the announcement revived suspicions that were again in this instance the administration might be slipping back into its old way of trying to make people more uncomfortable than necessary for the sole purpose of letting them know a war is on.

Cry of "Wolf"

Officials do not yet seem fully to realize that their old false cries of "wolf," and the experience of the public with the same, now requires them to justify their crack-down orders fully and fairly on a basis of necessity. Otherwise cooperation may not be hearty and controversy may ensue.

The announcement came, unfortunately, the day before Nelson's OPA announced a record-breaking tank car movement to the east of 834,440 barrels in a single day. Railroad men expect to boost this to 900,000 or possibly more a day eventually, without western rationing, by further speeding up the haul. They now run all such shipments both ways in special trains and are trying to cut down the loading and unloading period to about 24 hours.

Possible Factor.

Another peculiar factor may have swayed the Nelson board to vote two to one for this rationing order. Heavy fuel oils formerly came from Aruba and Curacao in Venezuela. There is plenty of oil and production capacity in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma to make up this supply now cut by Hitler's submarines.

But, gasoline is made as a by-product of this heavy fuel oil. If our own heavy oil production was expanded, we would have too much gasoline and no place to put it, as storage capacities are filled.

It is just possible that Mr. Ickes and Mr. Davies may have felt that this situation—not the overall problem of transportation—would create a mid-west heating and industrial supply problem, which would eventually justify the action which Mr. Nelson has hastened to take.

Yanks in India

Make Definite Impression, Especially with U. S. Money.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
Wide World Writer

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 18—In five short months the American forces have made a definite impression in this country, and especially in this city which is the United Nations supply base in their battle to keep the Japanese confined to the Orient.

Even before the air traveler reaches India he sees evidence of American air activity in a huge harbor filled with ships [illegible] and supplies. Once arrived in the port of entry, he sees a big building that shows this signboard: "Headquarters of the United States army air force," and the pancake flat street is filled with Americans in khaki, American cars with the special red and white air force license plates mingling with the camel carts driven by the natives.

The thousands of Americans in the air force and other branches of the service live in a variety of conditions ranging from crude lantern-lit barracks in the middle of the desert to modern hotels in India's capital, from tents almost in the shadow of famous monuments to tea plantations on the northeastern frontier.

Worst Is Over

It doesn't matter so much where or how they live now that the heat is broken and dust has subsided in most places, but before the monsoon broke it was unmitigated hell.

Americans have discovered one very pleasant place in India, however—Kashmir. During the worst of the summer in the lower sections where the heat is great and the humidity so excessive that it fairly steams, the men in need of a rest were flown regularly for a 10 days stay in houseboats in this idyllic Himalayan mountain lake scenery.

There are varied recreations including not only swimming, dancing, fishing and moonlight rides in shikaras (similar to gondolas), but also bear shooting in the pine forests.

Shikaras are the principal means of travel on the lake, and half the fun of riding them are the picturesque names they bear, coupled with the fact that they have spring seats of which the owners are very proud. Among the favorite boat names are "Wicked Uncle—Fine Spring Seats," "Mae West—Best Spring Seats," "Viceroy of India—Love Spring Seat."

Difference in Money

The Americans' money is a source of joy to the Indians and an annoyance to the British. The Americans earn more than do the British and do not mind spending it. Consequently everyone in India from the turbaned cobra charmers to tailors, who have learned quickly how to make American uniforms—and also how to charge for them—are doing a boom business. All prices have increased and no matter how much you give the coolies for carrying your luggage, he still yells for "backsheesh."

The Tonga drivers quickly caught on, especially in Harbor City where they pass up British fares for American.

Whether its money or the attraction of a different nationality, the Yanks—as the British call all Americans despite the fact that more than half the U. S. air force here comes from the south and are very conscious of it—are popular also with the girls all the way from Harbor City to Kashmir.

In Kashmir, one of the last places in India where one can get real Scotch, if you have the price, the American soldiers have impressed the British by buying an $8 bottle where the British officers limit themselves to purchases by the glass.

With the Indians, however, it is not only American money, but also a clarification of American status which boosted their popularity here. A burst of laudatory press comment followed the statement from Washington that American troops are not here to take part in any way in the internal political situation.

One on Costello

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Rookie Policeman A. J. Costello charged James Butler with resisting arrest on a speeding charge. Butler testified that, far from resisting arrest, he even directed Costello to the nearest precinct station when the officer became confused. Costello denied it. "All right, then," said Butler's attorney, "if you're so sure of precinct locations, suppose you tell us where Precinct 14 is located." Costello hemmed and hawed and finally told the court he "hadn't got that far in the book yet." Everybody in court howled with laughter. There isn't any Precinct 14 in Washington. The jury, admonished several times to stop laughing, didn't have to leave the box to find Butler not guilty.

Daily Bible Thought

Those who are sought as rulers always have first learned to rule themselves. It may be a hard saying: "If we suffer we shall also reign."—II Timothy 2:12.

Russia had the most casualties in the first World war—over nine millions killed, wounded and missing.

HARVEST TIME

"Russia Broken," Hitler Said Year Ago

What Will German Chancellor Tell His People This Fall?

"RUSSIA," announced Adolf Hitler on Oct. 3, 1941, "is broken and will never rise again. All Europe has escaped destruction only by the skin of our teeth."

Six days later, German newspapers officially informed their readers that the last remaining Russian armies faced annihilation and "for all military purposes Russia is finished."

Germans also heard from their fuehrer that the "last great decisive battle of this year has begun." Great Britain's hope of a two-front war was shattered, according to German spokesmen. The war was as good as over.

About the same time, Russia announced that Germany had lost 3,000,000 men, against 1,128,000 Russian casualties. By the middle of October, "the last great decisive battle" reached its climax with the Nazi hordes hammering at the gates of Moscow. But they never entered.

A year later, Moscow still stands. Today, the end of another bloody summer of fighting finds the "decisive battle" still raging, with Nazis hammering at and perhaps already inside the gates of Stalingrad. Again the fate of Europe seems to hang in the balance. But again, as Hitler and his helpers learned last year, it probably is too soon to be certain. Russia is still in the war.

Some Differences

The major German offensive of 1942 now has been in progress about 10 weeks. In comparing the German advances of 1941 and 1942, several differences are evident. The attack a year ago apparently caught the Russians partly off guard and made almost unopposed headway at first. Much of the advance was through lands that the Soviet Union had taken for use as buffer states; the Germans did not reach the former Soviet frontier until three weeks after they plunged into Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, eastern Poland and Bessarabia.

In 1942, however, the German offensive drive had been anticipated for many months. It even was a certainty that it would be concentrated on the southern front, in an attempt to thrust southeastward into the Caucasus. This would be in striking comparison to the previous year's operation when the German advance was uniformly strong along the entire front from the Baltic to the Black sea, a distance of almost 1,000 miles. The present German drive has been over a sector of about 350 miles wide, though the irregularity of the battlefront makes the total distance almost as great as it was a year ago.

In 10 weeks of 1942 the German drive toward Stalingrad penetrated about as deeply into Russian territory as the German drive of 1941 in the same time. But southwest of Stalingrad, in the Caucasus, the German advance this year has covered more ground than the German advance of 1941 covered at any one point in 10 weeks. Also, the 1942 drive, which has called into action every arm of German strength, according to observers has proceeded with unabated rapidity, whereas in 1941 the German advance obviously was slowing down by the middle of September. Perhaps this was in preparation for Hitler's last "decisive battle," but it nevertheless gave the Russians a breathing spell and may have saved Moscow.

Record In 1941

In 10 weeks of 1941 the Germans advanced about 250 miles on the average. Thereafter they went ahead on particular sectors. The third month of their advance saw their gains confined largely to the region southwest of Moscow. The fourth month saw the advance held, except in the center. The fifth and final month saw gains only south of Moscow. The total German penetration in 1941 was about 350 miles, reaching 550 miles at one or two points.

From the battlefront of June 28, 1942, due west to Stalingrad, which the Germans plainly intend to capture if it is humanly possible at any cost, is about 300 miles. From the Kerch peninsula of the Crimea, where they started their drive this year, to the farthest point east reached so far the distance is about 450 miles.

The question raised by this summer's action is whether or not Germany's gains in territory have been worth the price it has been forced to pay. Contrary to the boasts made a year ago, the Russian armies still have not been destroyed. Casualties on both sides have been terrific. It is not doubted that both sides are gravely weakened by their effort. But the important fact is that Germany, anxious to rule, cannot afford to be growing weaker at this critical moment in its bloody war for power.

It has not conquered Russia yet. It still must deal with Great Britain and the United States. If it has expended too much of its power on the eastern battlefront—the danger that Adolf Hitler stressed emphatically in "Mein Kampf"—the misguided German people have lost World War II. Their fuehrer will need to talk fast this year to explain why it is that 12 months later he still hasn't been able to accomplish what he said had been taken care of last October—the annihilation of Russia.

"—No, Mr. Benson, take another week, if you like. Everything's going just as if you were here!"

An Easier Way

Soldiers and Sailors Toiling in Army-Navy Relief Should Be Released for Active Duty.

By DAMON RUNYON

I NOTE that John Law is hot after a sweepstakes operation that had headquarters in Nicaragua and has rounded up a number of persons on the west coast and elsewhere, alleging that they participated in the selling of tickets and other wordings of the enterprise.

The "take" of this one lottery is put at $12,000,000 a year in the United States alone by the authorities. When you consider that it is a somewhat obscure proposition of limited territorial scope in the distribution of tickets, you get a faint idea of what the gross receipts of all the numerous lottery dodges in the country must be.

These dodges include the sweepstakes based on the Kentucky Derby and Chicago races that I have mentioned in this column on several occasions, the numbers games and bolita rackets operate in scores of cities, the many "banks" conducting regular drawings under various guises in San Francisco and elsewhere, the Chinese, Cuban and Puerto Rican lotteries, the hundreds of other rackets of a similar nature that appeal to the gambling instinct of the American public.

IF THE Nicaraguan lottery has been getting $12,000,000 per year here, as the authorities claim, then the total of all the lottery operations must be well into the billions. Practically all of these operations are illegal, yet open tolerance in many places. In fact, the prosecutions against those alleged to be connected with the Nicaragua affair are the first of any consequence to be instituted, though all the lotteries I speak of are common knowledge to the police of the communities in which they operate.

Readers may recall that for a time I was strenuously advocating a federal lottery for army and navy relief purposes and may have noted that I have been conspicuously silent on the subject recently. That is because I came to the conclusion that there is scant chance of congress legalizing a lottery or anything like it, though several bills to that end have been introduced in the house and senate.

I am reviving the topic now only to show you the extent of unlawful lottery operations from which the government realizes little or anything and to give you a hint of what might be raised in this manner for the relief that is now dependent on the civilian public. The money has to be produced through show business, athletic enterprises, such as prizefights and football games, and through direct appeals, which amounts to passing the hat.

INCIDENTALLY, it is said that many of the athletics who are employed in these operations, especially the football players, are complaining that they went into the service to see action and not to continue their football stars of them are plenty sore over the situation.

Moreover, there is also complaint from the civilian public about the extent of these activities and the increasing employment of soldiers in endeavors that can scarcely be called military, though of course no criticism can be made of the soldiers themselves because they must do just what they are told.

It may be that the theory that these extra curricular activities of the military are beneficial to public morale is wrong and that they may, indeed, have the reverse effect. However, no one will deny that the money for relief is absolutely necessary, which is why I think it might be a good thing to raise through a federal lottery that would produce a hundred times more than the activities of relieve the soldiers and sailors of tasks that some find irksome.

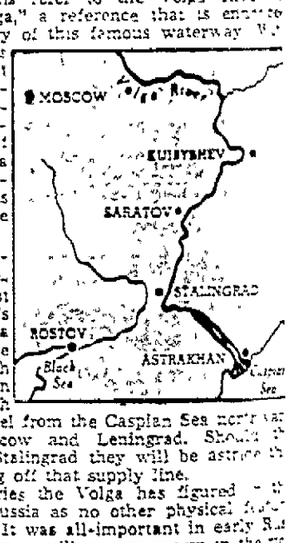
"Mother of Rivers"

Wide World Features

All Russians refer to the Volga River as "Mother Volga," a reference that is emphasized by the history of this famous waterway. With Nazi hordes battering at the approaches to Stalingrad the importance of the Volga River to Russia becomes all the more apparent.



This 2,325-mile waterway, longest of Europe's rivers, is a vital lifeline over which American and British supplies travel from the Caspian Sea ports toward Moscow and Leningrad. Should the Nazis take Stalingrad they will be astride the route, cutting off that supply line.

For centuries the Volga has figured in the history of Russia as no other physical feature has figured. It was all-important in early Russian expansion as villages sprung up in the rich agricultural lands. Some of these villages became strongly fortified places which provided the bulwark against the Mongol invasions of the 13th century.

With the Mongols repulsed, the Russians pushed down the Volga until they reached the delta of 200 mouths at Astrakhan.

"Mother Volga" drains 563,000 square miles of territory. The river will accommodate vessels up to a seven-foot draught in some parts of the winter when the Volga freezes over it is used as a sledge route.

22 Went Unarmed

Twenty-two men, five of them Americans, braved the hell of the Dieppe raid armed only with pencils, notepaper and, perhaps, [illegible] (patches don't say), typewriters.

They were the press association correspondents whose eye-witness accounts of the abortive sortie began to flash by cable and radio immediately out the world within a few minutes after the invasion fleet was safely back on British soil. One of them was wounded.

These 22 symbolize a whole army of newspaper men stationed everywhere men fight for freedom, and their role is not less heroic than that of the fighters themselves. For with them there is the Roll of Honor of correspondents who have died in the line of duty. In the current era of conflict, the roll began in the Spanish civil war and will not be concluded until the present wars are over.

Living with armies and armadas, sharing alike all vicissitudes of the men in uniform, usually without even small arms for self-protection—they work, endure and sometimes die that the world may know how the battle for freedom is going.—Detroit Free Press.

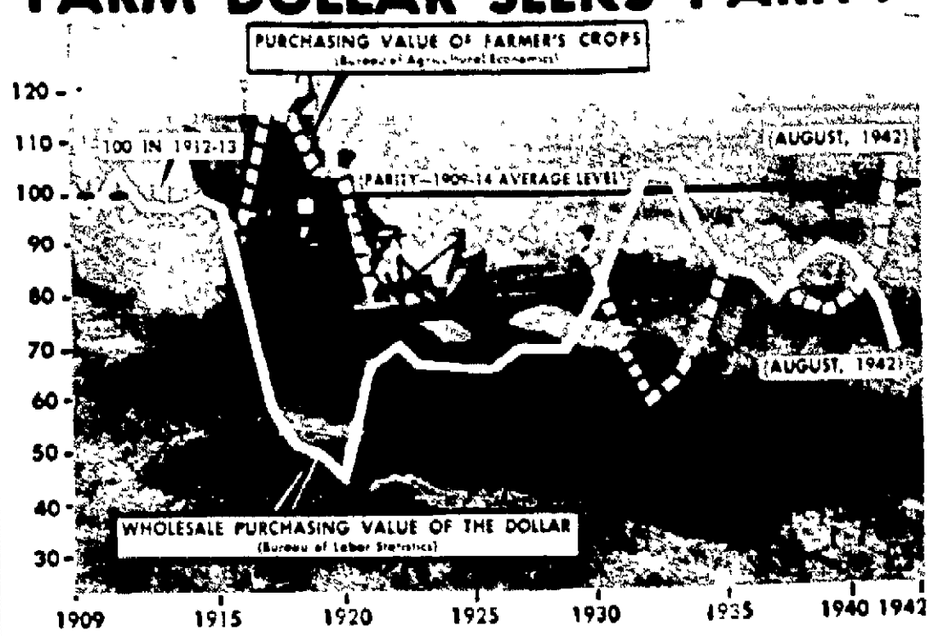
FARM DOLLAR SEEKS PARITY



Wide World Features

They're talking about parity again. President Roosevelt wants parity ceiling prices on farm products. Farm groups want to leave the ceiling at 110% of parity. Parity farm prices are those which would give farmers a purchasing power about equal to that they enjoyed in the period 1909-14. This chart shows how the purchasing power of the farmer's crops has varied compared to the wholesale purchasing power of the dollar since 1909. Note how the farmer's crops soared in value during World War I and are soaring again in this war. But note, too, how they reached bottom in 1932, fell again in "recession" of 1937.

600 AT WAR PLANT EMPLOYES' PARTY

Crystal Lake Event Nets $100 for War Bonds.

A dance and box social provided a full evening's entertainment for some 600 employes of the Scioto Ordnance Plant Thursday evening at Crystal Lake park and boosted the plant's war bond and stamp sales by approximately $100.

High bidders for "surprise" packages prepared by the committee found themselves owners of rabbits, pigs, chickens and other live stock and when names were drawn for a special prize by Miss Pee Gasparek, Marion's first Amateur day queen, the winner of a $25 war bond was Dick West. Auctioneers were J. G. Kish, assistant superintendent of Hunkin-Conkey Co. and J. A. Van Broderode, recreational manager of the U. S. Rubber Co. Boxes sold as high as $27 and in addition to surprise prizes, awards to high bidders included war stamps. A number of box lunches were auctioned and these also brought top prices.

Dancing, which began at 9 o'clock with Earl Hood and his 12-piece orchestra from Columbus playing the program, was interspersed with the auction and entertainment by a group of players from the Kinsey Komedy Co.

The committee in charge included Ken Mabee, Jean Fisher, George Siegmiller, Frank Tunison, War Department employes, Edwin Slagle, Jane Bailey, Holabird & Root; Jack VanBroderode, U. S. Rubber Co.; Lieut. John C. Pugh, ordnance; Becky Campbell, George Baum and J. G. Kish, Hunkin-Conkey.

Big Job Ahead for Willkie on Visit to Russia

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Special Ambassador Wendell Willkie, who is now in Russia, would achieve a notable contribution to United Nation victory if he could find some way of breaking through a Muscovite reserve which at times forms a really formidable barrier to close cooperation with the other allies.

The Russians in many instances are maintaining such a close-mouthed attitude about details of their war effort that Uncle Sam and John Bull often find difficulty in figuring just what the situation is. I believe you'd have to search hard to find an American or British staff officer who claimed to know just what the Red military position has been during the crucial fighting in the Caucasus this summer.

Confuses Situation

Such a lack of information makes it difficult for Russia's allies to know exactly what cooperation is needed in specific cases. No general staff is going to fling its forces into action blindly.

Of course the Russians are by nature people of action and not too many words.

Still, the thing cuts a good deal deeper than that. There have been signs that Moscow might not have complete confidence in her allies. If so, the situation hasn't been helped any by the feeling in at least some circles in Russia that the United States and Britain could have done more in the matter of opening a second-front. Unfortunately this suspicion must have been strengthened by the demand for a second front from uninformed and ill-advised people in both America and Britain.

But it strikes me that we have to look further back to find the basic reason why the Muscovites play their cards so close to their chests. For the greater part of the past quarter century the Soviet Union stood apart among the nations of the world because of the almost universal hostility towards the political doctrine of Communism.

Reds Walked Alone

So the Reds hoed their own row, and nothing was more natural than that they should build a mighty barrier about themselves to the exclusion of a world which was fearful of Bolshevism. The secrecy which surrounded Russia, and still does, is one of the amazing phases of history, for the outside world has known little of what went on within her borders.

Proof of this lies in Hitler's misjudgment of the Soviet military strength. The secret services of Germany and the other European countries are among the most formidable in the world, but they couldn't penetrate the Red wall of secrecy.

It is understandable that under such circumstances Moscow should still be reticent in disclosing its affairs to the world. At the same time there seems to be no reason why this feeling shouldn't be dispelled, since it isn't due to any lack of desire to fulfill the obligations of the alliance to the end.

Proof of the Russian willingness to die for the cause is before us in the magnificent defense of Stalingrad. Proof of the barrier of secrecy also is seen in this same historic siege, for Russia's allies don't know even in this crisis just what reserve power the Red army may be able to produce.

So there, Mr. Willkie, is a grand opportunity for you.

ANOTHER AEF CONVOY REACHES BRITISH PORTS

Huge Force Crosses Atlantic Without Sighting Sub.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 18—Thousands of American troops arrived in Britain recently to swell the ranks of the rapidly expanding United States army in this country waiting for the opening of a second front.

While they have been whisked away to camps already, announcement of their arrival was not permitted until today.

They came in a typical convoy of great ships, which were well known passenger liners in peacetime, and disembarked at a number of British ports.

The crossing of the Atlantic was made swiftly and not a single German submarine was sighted, it was reported.

The arrivals consisted mainly of fighting men and anti-aircraft and transport units. There were also hundreds of army technical experts and some army air force personnel.

FLOW OF JUNK CARS DROPS 20 PER CENT

Wyandot and Crawford Scrap Production Listed.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18—Collection of war-vital scrap from automobile graveyards of 44 northern Ohio counties declined more than 20 per cent in the past 30 days because "many individuals are holding up on the sale of old jalopies," E. Ames Alden, WPB district automobile salvage chief, declared today.

Alden said 416 graveyards shipped 15,228 tons of scrap during the past month compared with 19,569 tons during the previous 30 days. In the same period auto junk purchases declined to 6,187 cars—a drop of more than 400.

"This decrease in tonnage cannot be attributed to lack of effort on the part of the graveyard owners," Alden said. "The plain and simple truth is that many individuals are holding up the sale of these old jalopies, either because they don't understand the situation, or are just unpatriotic and refuse to sell their old cars unless they get their price.

"Graveyard dealers cannot pay over $15 for each car when it is sold as scrap. Most of them are worth less—usually $5," he added.

Cuyahoga county yielded 2,523 tons of scrap materials in the past 30 days to lead the 44 counties. Other counties producing more than 300 tons were Summit 1,150; Stark 935; Columbiana 920, Mahoning 743; Crawford 710; Lucas 705; Jefferson 585; Lorain 432; Williams 393; Wayne 351, Wyandot 315; Medina 311; Lake 306; and Tuscarawas 304.

In an effort to speed the scrap flow from homes, house-to-house and farm-to-farm canvasses are planned in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky under a revised program designed to better coordinate collection efforts.

Harding High Assembly Welcomes 81 New Students, Nine New Teachers

Increase in Newcomers Over Year Ago; Come to Marion from Eight States.

Harding High school's 81 new students from outside the Marion school district, including some from as far away as Rhode Island, Mississippi and Arizona, and nine new faculty members were welcomed this morning in the first assembly of the school year.

Last year there were only 69 students from outside the district through the entire year, according to Principal O. H. P. Snyder.

The newcomers the first week of school, most of them from families in Marion to help with the war program, include one from Providence, R. I., one from Mississippi, two from West Virginia, one from Pennsylvania, three from Indiana, two from Michigan, two from Illinois and one from Kingman, Ariz. The others are from outlying districts.

New Faculty Members

The new faculty members are Miss Florence Couver, girls' physical education director; Victor Dorris, boys' physical education director and football coach; Herbert Duerr, science and mathematics; Miss Josephine Morris, art; Joseph Petrich, mechanical drawing and assistant football coach; Mrs. Lucile Stahl, distributive education; Miss Muncie Winder, shorthand, typing and bookkeeping; Archie Myers, vocational related science and mathematics, and Miss Mirjam Moses, librarian.

In both "welcome to Harding" assemblies the principal greeted the new students and talked on the traditions of the high school, closing with a challenge to the 1942-43 students to maintain the school's high standards.

Also in both meetings, Miss Isabel Freer and members of the student council, of which Tom Hurst is president, talked on the council program and its first project of the new school year, a "get acquainted" plan which will go into effect next week. Members of the council were introduced.

Welcomes New Class

In the sophomore assembly in east hall Charles Elliott, a junior who was sophomore class president last year, welcomed the new class. Bruce Johnson, who was president of Central Junior High school last year, responded on behalf of the students.

The junior and senior class assembly was held in west hall. Newcomers were welcomed by Keith Williams, a senior who was junior class president last year. The response was made by Calvin Scott, who was president last year of the Thomas A. Edison Junior High school junior class.

The assemblies opened with singing of the national anthem and giving of the pledge of allegiance, and closed with singing the school song.

AIR TROOPS

...cializing in all-home welfare.

Most of them are from the south and their accent are so thick that even the British liaison officer now says, "you all."

Even many of the minority from the north have picked up the southern accent. Sergeant Alan Josephs of New York, for instance, answers "Me? Why sho', mah home's over on th' yuhside drive."

Most of the men joined the battalion shortly after Pearl Harbor. Some, already in the army, took demotions to get to be parachute fighters.

They add a potent until to the American striking power in Britain, greatly bolstered by the arrival of many big convoys.

It is not known whether the American parachute units will be saved to form a spearhead for an eventual invasion of the continent or will be used, as British parachutists have been, on commando raids such as the attack on Bruneval, French channel port between Le Havre and Dieppe.

DRESSINGS

...hair tied up while they are making dressings. For the present the hair coverings will be furnished.

Mrs. Sawyer emphasized that the dressings are being made for the army, not the Red Cross.

The specifications were made out by the surgeon general and the completed dressings will be sent to the nearest quartermaster depot of the United States army.

Women of America have been asked to supply 90 per cent of the surgical dressings that will be used here and all over the world where American and Allied forces are fighting. Pharmaceutical houses, because of priorities, cannot get machinery to make more than 10 per cent above the present output.

Mrs. Sawyer recently attended a special surgical dressing school the American Red Cross conducted in Dayton, and she is instructing the women who have volunteered to serve as supervisors.

They are Mrs. Richard Lawson, co-chairman with Mrs. Sawyer, Mrs. J. C. Ackerman, Mrs. Hector S. Young, Mrs. Robert Owens, Mrs. Bernard Smith, Mrs. Grant E. Mouser Jr., Mrs. H. H. Jacobs, Mrs. Bernard Moloney, Mrs. John K. Bartram, Mrs. O. E. Hamilton, Mrs. Charles Ritts, Mrs. Phillip Guthery, Mrs. Wilson B. Tway, Mrs. George E. Planck, Mrs. Albert Loeb, Mrs. James Ralston, Mrs. John A. McNamara, Mrs. B. R. Prichard, Mrs. Mabel Owens and Mrs. Samuel Rosenberg.

CARONE, KNOX AND JONES MAT WINNERS

Bloomfield Loses Deciding Fall in Feature Match.

Fred Carone, Rudy Knox and Richie Jones were the victors in the Athletic wrestling program Thursday night.

Carone, a Boston fighter, won easily over Letty Parr of Toledo, in the main semi-preliminary bout with a body slam.

After being disqualified for unnecessary roughness in the first fall, Matty Myers, the Canadian Hulking Halfback, dropped the second and deciding fall to rough Rudy Knox in the one-hour semi-final. Knox won the second fall when he dashed out of Myers' reach to make pinches and fall, and Myers with a jump to A and a Solid Force of the Knox and Angels reeling to the mat and Knox won with a backslide.

Richie Jones, the sepia-skinned New York City lad, became a crowd favorite by defeating the popular Jack Bloomfield in the feature match. Up to Thursday night Bloomfield, one time holder of the mat wrestling belt, had a near perfect record. A return match will probably be arranged for the next few weeks to give Jones a chance to even the score.

Jones went to the mat with a series of headlocks. Bloomfield buried an arm certain loss into a one fall score in the second by pre-doing one of Jones' stunts and landing with a reverse headlock grab in the third and deciding fall. Jones again tried a crab hold and again Bloomfield buckled. He was in the process of applying another reverse headlock when Jones shook loose and took with a body press.

GREW SAYS JAPS TOUGHER FOE OF U. S. THAN NAZIS

Declares Only Complete Defeat Will Stop Them.

By The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 18—Describing Japan as "our most formidable enemy," Joseph Clark Grew, former Ambassador to Japan, told a war rally luncheon here today that the Germans cracked in 1918 and they will crack again, but the Japanese will fight until they are utterly crushed.

Grew, who was an American diplomat in Berlin in 1917 and American ambassador in Tokyo in 1941, indicated he was profoundly skeptical to hear people in this country talk as if Germany in time would be defeated "and then we'll mop up the Japs."

He agreed with those who believe Germany will not survive a series of setbacks. But he added, in a prepared speech broadcast over the NBC network:

"The Japanese will not crack. They will not crack morally or psychologically or economically, even when eventual defeat stares them in the face . . . only by utter physical destruction or utter exhaustion of their men and materials can they be defeated."

"That," he said, "is the difference between the Germans and the Japanese. That is what we are up against in fighting Japan."

It is difficult for Americans who have never lived in Japan, Grew continued, to form any conception of the overwhelming confidence of the Japanese army and navy in their ability to subjugate not only large areas of Asia but of the western hemisphere, too.

Yours in Oranges

THE NATURAL WAY

You know you like oranges! But do you know how they help you get the vitamins and minerals you need?

They're first in vitamin C. And they also contain vitamins A, B1 and G; calcium and other minerals.

DON'T TAKE A CHANCE

You don't "store up" vitamin C, so you need it every day. Without plenty of citrus fruits, the chances are you won't get enough to feel and do your best.

Play safe. Have orange juice for breakfast. Put oranges in lunch boxes, salads and sugar-saving desserts. Ask for trademarked "Sunkist" Oranges—finest from 14,500 cooperating growers. Buy in quantities; they keep.

S.W.O.C. 1949 NOTCHES SECOND LITTLE WORLD SERIES VICTORY

Edges Greenwood Team, 6-5; To Play Coca-Cola Again Tuesday.

S. W. O. C. No. 1949, winner of the industrial softball league championship, moved another step closer to the city-league softball championship last night by trimming Greenwood No. 1 in a second-round Little World Series game at Lincoln park. The final score was 6-5.

In the inaugural round, S. W. O. C. finally defeated Coca-Cola, 7-6, after being held to a 1-1 tie in an opening game. Because of a double elimination clause in tournament regulations, the two teams will again tangle Tuesday night at Lincoln park. If S. W. O. C. wins, Coca-Cola is automatically eliminated from the tourney. However, a Coca-Cola victory would require a third game between the two teams.

The team winning two games will meet Greenwood No. 1 under the same conditions in a series starting either next Thursday or the following Tuesday.

Walters' Second Win

Last night's win was Woody Walters' second in Little World Series competition this year. He scattered eights hits, while Bill Everly, on the mound for Greenwood, allowed only four.

Greenwood opened the scoring with one run in the first inning. Max Roseberry, who leaves today to begin coast guard duty, singled after Charles Reid had flied out. Roseberry scored on an error and John Marshall's outfield fly.

Walter Corrigan walked to start S. W. O. C.'s half of the first and scored on Darnell's double. Darnell scored after two infields. The eventual winners bagged two more uncarned runs in the second. B. Walters and J. Anspaugh walked. A. Doland fanned and P. Griffith doubled, scoring both Walters and Anspaugh.

Both teams pushed across one run in third inning. Joe Roseberry led off with a double and scored after flies by Bill Everly and Howard Hodges. E. Walters singled with two out and finally scored on an error and a passed ball.

Scores Three Runs

Greenwood added three more runs in the sixth inning on three singles, a triple, infield out and an outfield fly. Hodges led off with a single. Reid also singled. M. Roseberry grounded out, Edington to Frayer and John Marshall singled to score Hodges. Armbruster was out on a fly to Corrigan and Jim Braham tripled to score both Reid and Marshall. Ted Anderson was out on a roller to Pitcher Woody Walters.

A home run by John Edington in S. W. O. C.'s half of the sixth decided the game. Greenwood was unable to score in its half of the seventh.

FUTILE TRY AS DODGERS LOSE AGAIN

Desperately trying to put the Brooklyn Dodgers back in the National league pennant race again, Arky Vaughn hurtles futilely across the plate, above, but is out as Catcher Al Lopez of the Pittsburgh Pirates slaps the ball on him. Vaughn tried to score on Ducky Medwick's infield roller in the first inning. The Dodgers lost the game, to Brooklyn, 3 to 2, while the St. Louis Cardinals were downing the Boston Braves, 6 to 4, to go three games ahead. (Phone-photo).

INDIANA: this is the story of Earl (Twinkle Toes) Dolaway, the Hoosiers' powerful punter who has been averaging 60 yards per kick in practices. . . . Coach Bo McMillin sent Billy Hillenbrand and Charley Jacoby back 35 yards and asked Twinkle Toes to kick to them for punt returns. . . . The first punt sailed over their heads. . . . "Back up five yards," Bo ordered. . . . The ball again went over them. . . . "Get back another five," the coach yelled. . . . The ball whizzed overhead. . . . "Dolaway!" Bo shouted, "for crying out loud cave up a little—we kan't git any work done this way. . . ."

Erie Defeats Canton In Mid-Atlantic Playoffs

By The Associated Press

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 18—Erie opened its home series in the finals of the Mid-Atlantic league Shaughnessy playoffs tonight with a two-game edge over Canton.

The Sailors took two straight at Canton, winning the second 5 to 1 last night. The teams play three games here, and if other contests are needed in the best four-out-of-seven series their site will be decided by the toss of a coin.

National Tournament in Semi-Final Round

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 18—The Hotel New Yorkers, of New York, victorious in four starts, clash with the Birmingham, Ala., Goslins today in the National Amateur Baseball Federation tournament.

The meet has narrowed from 17 to four teams — New York, Birmingham, the Pittsburgh Dormonts and the Detroit Auto club.

New York handed the Dormont entry its first loss last night, winning by a 10 to 3 count before 7,500 spectators. Bill Simmons of New York scattered 11 hits as his teammates iced the game by scoring five tallies in the third inning.

Two defeats are required for elimination.

COLUMBUS, TOLEDO OPEN PLAY TONIGHT

Vie for Governor's Cup in Series at Columbus.

By The Associated Press

The all-Ohio battle for the Governor's cup championship of the American association opens tonight between Columbus and Toledo, with Bill Crouch slated to take the mound for the Red Birds and Archie McKain Toledo's pitching nominee.

The winner of the best-of-seven series will meet either the Syracuse Chiefs or the Jersey City Giants, finalists in the International league playoffs, for the little world's series crown. Syracuse eliminated Montreal last night, 7-2. Jersey City made the grade a day earlier, putting out the pennant-winning Newark Bears, four games to two.

Crouch of Columbus has won 11 games this season and lost 12, and Toledo's McKain compiled 17 victories to 11 defeats.

The Birds and Mud Hens play two games in Columbus before moving to Toledo. If the series goes beyond five encounters the teams return to Ohio's capital.

TRACK STARS PLAY BIG PART IN EARLY GOPHER GRID DRILLS

Kelley and Luckemeyer Cover Century in Less Than 10 Seconds.

This is another of a series of stories on major football teams of the country.

• • •

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 18—Ten days of grid practice at the University of Minnesota have emphasized the fact that Dr. George Hauser, the new head coach, is a stickler for fundamentals and speed.

The Gopher gridders were given nothing but basic stuff during the first week—blocking and tackling, quick starting and turning, use of hands, ball handling, hard hitting—and the boys thrived on it.

Emphasizes Speed

And when the squad was advanced to daily scrimmage this week, it became more apparent that Hauser is determined to make the 1942 Gophers a speedy outfit, with especial attention to the line, which will run some 10 pounds to the man lighter than the starters of the 1941 championship outfit.

There'll be need for a lot of speed ahead if Hauser is to make the best use of two sophomore backfield prospects who stole much of the practice show this week. They are Dick Kelly of Minneapolis, track man who hadn't been out for football until this fall, and Dick Luckemeyer, of St. Cloud, both of whom can do the 100 yard dash in less than 10 seconds.

Both Kelley and Luckemeyer got away for touchdown runs during practice by simply outsprinting the opposition, and they are expected to see plenty of real competition at the first opportunity.

Open Against Pitt

The two dozen or so players on whom Hauser will depend mainly for the season opener with Pittsburgh here Sept. 26 have been pretty well singled out, with the first string set excepting in one or two spots.

Only one sophomore appears likely to break into the starting eleven for the opener, with the other positions going to 1941 letter winners. At the ends will be Bill Baumgartner and Herb Heinz; tackles, Captain Dick Wildung and Paul Mitchell; guards, either Charles Dellago or John Perko, both sophomores, at one guard and either John Billman or Wally Holmstrom at the other; center, Don Nolander or Bob Solheim; quarterback, Bill Garnaas; left half, Bill Daley; right half, Herman Frickey and fullback, Vic Kulbitski.

For reserves, Hauser has three lettermen ready for the ends, three for the tackles, one for center, and three in the backfield. The six top guards of the 1941 outfit were lost through graduation and there Hauser will have to spend on men who did not play enough last year to win a letter, and on sophomores.

In the backfield, also, experience is lacking among the newcomers, with seven sophomores included among the 10 players who have performed the best thus far.

Marysville Opens 1942 Grid Play with 12-0 Win

Quarterback Dick Baker scored both touchdowns. The losers never crossed the 50-yard line. Marysville's next game will be at Urbana Friday night.

Cardinals Rally in 9th To Defeat Braves and All But Sew Up League Flag

Dodgers Lose, 3-2, to Pittsburgh Pirates for Sixth Loss in Seven Games; Indians Win Over Senators, 6-5.

By The Associated Press

WELL, children, it looks like you can patch up what's left of the fires on the family hearth for the St. Louis fall world series fun, and from what's been going on here lately it is no longer so much the Cardinals winning as the Dodgers losing the National league flag.

For, if ever a club looked like it had folded up, the Dodgers from Flatbush did just that yesterday in dropping a 3-2 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates for their sixth setback in seven games.

What made the Bums seem all the more pathetic was the way the Cards kept right on fighting in Boston and finally won out 8-4 with a five-run blast in the ninth, to go three games in front in the 6 ball game.

pennant parade

At the same instant as the guys from St. Louis were finally getting to Al Javery — after being muffled with five hits for eight frames—three Dodgers were walking meekly up to the plate at Ebbets field for their ninth-inning 'licks' and being retired in order with no more fight than you'll find in a slightly dead chicken.

Cards Meet Cubs

The net result of these proceedings was to put the Cards in a spot where only a major catastrophe can keep the Red Birds out of the senior circuit championship, climaxing one of the sturdiest uphill fights in years. For, not only were they three games in front with only eight to go, but two of these games were on the important "losing side" in the records.

At the moment, as the Cards headed west to pick up against the Cubs Saturday and the Dodgers tangled with the Phillies today, here was the picture:

	W.	L.	To Play
Cardinals	99	47	8
Dodgers	95	49	10

With the hot National league shindig still just about the whole show, the chief supporting features of the day saw the New York Yankees win their 100th ball game to break a record they already had in the books and Tex Hughson join the select "20-game-winners" pitching set.

Joe DiMaggio's 20th homer of the season, good for three runs, was the big blow for the Yanks as they knocked off the Detroit Tigers 7-4. This marked the eighth season in which the Bombers had chalked up 100 or more victories, adding one more year to the mark they already had.

Is 20-Game Winner

Hughson became the first 20-game winner for the Boston Red Sox since the hey-day of Wesley-the-Cheek Farrell. Tex spread nine hits among the St. Louis Browns and galloped off with a 5-1 decision.

But the pitching job of the afternoon came out of the Philadelphia Athletics. Young Roger Wolff had Jimmy Dykes moaning in agony as he handcuffed the Chicago White Sox with just two safeties for a 1-0 victory.

Out in Cleveland, Sid Hudson arrived on the scene in the 11th inning for the Senators just in time to walk home the winning run that gave the Indians a 6 to 5 victory.

Buddy Young clouted a homer and three singles and knocked in seven runs to back up Harry Feldman's five-hit fast-balling and give the New York Giants an easy 11-1 win over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Chicago Cubs flailed the Phillies 8-0 behind Hank Wyse's eight-hit whitewashing job.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—One thing that has nose-race fans puzzled about the Whirlaway-Alsab match tomorrow as who's going to be pace setter? . . . Both these goats—beg pardon, equine aristocrats—like to come from behind to win and unless one jockey is willing to take a chance on getting a licking by setting the pace, the affair is liable to be about as exciting as that great mile race a few years back when Cunningham, Venzke and Mangan did everything but run backwards to keep from taking the lead . . . To dress up the race a bit they're calling it the "Narragansett Championship" and instead of having numbers, the starting stalls will have signs "Whirlaway" and "Alsab" over them . . . When George Halas scouted the Eastern Army All-Star footballers at Baltimore, his only comment was, "They keep coming at you."

Today's Guest Star—Henry A. Sullivan, Salem, Mass., News: "Of late 'the Bums' seem to have lost about everything, including the quotation marks."

Service Dept.—Four years ago, 132-pound Hal Mollison was considered too light to box Hank Melody when both were fighting around Chicago. The other day, when Sergt. Mollison was transferred from his duties as Fort Sheridan boxing coach to another post, he weighed 180; Melody, who has been appearing in his shows at the fort, still scales 140 . . . When the end squad of the Great Lakes football team lined up for picture-taking recently, a joking photographer asked, "Which one is Hutson?" . . . "Which one?" demanded Cowswain Carl Mullenaux, who used to play with Don on the Green Bay Packers, "You mean which six?"

RIO GRANDE OPENS OHIO GRID SEASON WITH 25 TO 0 LOSS

Gallia Co. Team Fails To Score Once in Last Five Campaigns.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Sept. 18—The collegiate football season was a few hours old today, but already one record was in the books which cannot be broken this year.

Little Rio Grande, from the Gallia county hills, launched the campaign last night by absorbing a 25 to 0 defeat at the hands of Louisville, Ky. university.

The defeat launched the boys from the knob country on their fifth straight campaign without a victory. Just how many defeats in a row the Rio Grande boys suffered isn't remembered, but the last time the Gallia collegians finished in front was back in 1937. Old timers figure the defeat string must be around the 40 mark.

Fail To Score

The 1939 and 1940 campaigns in addition to netting no victories found the Rio Grandes failing to score a single point. They broke that string of goose eggs last season, however, by counting two futile touchdowns.

Nothing like the Rio Grande victory drouth has been seen around the Buckeye realm since the days, some six or seven years ago, when Hiram college explained an unprecedented string of losses with a calm and dignified "Hiram doesn't hire 'em."

Coach Mendell Beattie, who took over the Rio Grande job last year, said the college "doesn't have the material to play the larger schools on an even basis but we'll keep trying, anyway."

Week-End Games

Now that the ball country collegians have lifted the lid off the campaign, action becomes fast and heavy on the Buckeye front.

EARLY GRAIN GAINS WIPED OUT LATER

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 18—After rye futures prices had advanced 2 cents a bushel and wheat a cent, the grain market turned reactionary today and the early gains were reduced by late profit taking and hedging sales particularly in the wheat pit.

Short covering and buying stimulated by a report that a congressional move may be made to raise government crop loan rates were largely responsible for the initial upturn, traders said. Washington price control developments continued to disturb the trade, however.

Receipts Are Heavier at Galion Auction

DEMOLITION JOBS YIELD CRITICAL MATERIALS

Salvage Operations Assume New Importance Now.

A highly important way for conserving critical materials that is often overlooked by builders is in the salvage of materials still in comparatively good condition, that are recovered from demolition jobs.

Building experts point out that care should be exercised in writing specifications for demolition jobs, requiring that all critical materials be salvaged and sorted for reuse. Such conservation can result in considerable savings.

Other important savings can be effected through the use of substitutes. For instance, steel, now so very high on the critical list, can be conserved by substituting concrete blocks for steel-reinforced foundations. In many cases masonry may be satisfactorily substituted.

Plastics, tile, and other materials are being used as effective building material substitutes. One recent development is a new tile bathtub which may be built in as a substitute for the cast iron and enamel one now prohibited.

GAINS LIMITED TO LOW MARKS

Stocks Quiet Last Few Days Pick Up While Rails Take a Rest.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—Steels, motors and scattered industrial leaders picked up a following in today's stock market while the lively rails and low-priced issues of the previous session took a rest.

Gains were limited to small fractions. Dealings were fairly active for a while, then slowed. A few recoveries of a point or so were observed.

Some buying was attributed to the idea the market had been giving a relatively good account of itself in the face of tax confusion, anti-inflation wrangles and uninspiring war news. Fresh Russian resistance at Stalingrad were helpful.

Stocks attracting support included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Santa Fe, Douglas Aircraft, Eureka Vacuum and Yellow Truck. Backward at times were Great Northern, Southern Pacific, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda, Woolworth, Western Union, Eastman Kodak, and International Telephone.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Infancy and Childhood

THE CHILD Health Movement is celebrating its 18th birthday this year. It can hardly be gainsaid that education of parents and teachers in this country has done as much to promote the health of the present generation as public hygiene measures.

The standards to determine the health of an infant and child at different ages is one feature of the educational program this year.

The proportions of the body of an infant at the age when it is just beginning to stand and walk are different from those of the child and adult. The trunk and head are relatively large, the extremities relatively short. The legs and arms grow much faster than the rest of the body. The length of the newborn baby's legs from the crest of the ilipome to the sole of the feet is 43 per cent of the entire bodily length. That of a child of 18 is 60 per cent.

The points to notice about the baby of one or two years are, first, the shape and form of the head. It should be well rounded with plenty of space above the eyes, and the jaws wide to prevent teeth crowding.

The neck should be free of enlarged glands.

The chest should be broad and deep, the abdomen flat.

The skin should be everywhere clear.

The arms are normally plump, but not excessively fat. The same thing is true of the legs. The muscles of arms and legs should be firm.

The legs should be straight, not bowed, and the lower limbs strong and well-proportioned.

For the child of about eight or 10 it is a sign of good health for the height and weight of the child to be close to the average for the age.

A luxurious head of hair is a sign of health.

The shoulders should be square, the back flat at this age (later the normal curves begin to appear), the spine straight, the muscles firm and the trunk well proportioned. The legs should be straight and not bowed, and the knees should touch without bumping when the child is standing at attention. The feet now should be well arched.

These general standards can be determined by any parents without recourse to measurements and without any special medical training. If the child does not conform to them reasonably closely it should be an indication for medical consultation to see if there is any nutritional condition or bone condition which would account for the lack of bodily symmetry.

Children with this standard of bodily build may be expected to be normally active, to eat and sleep well, to begin to walk and talk at the regular ages.

Enemy at Home

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—So you think life on the battlefronts is dangerous? Figures compiled by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company show that more persons have died of bullet wounds accidentally inflicted in the peace years since 1918 than died in A.E.F. action.

The peace-time shooting toll has reached 70,000. There were 50,000 A.E.F. deaths resulting from front-line action.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

AT MY OUTCRY Miss Warlock turned from the couch where Carolyn was supposed to be sleeping.

"There's a mummy in that bed, too!" she said, pointing one of my rods to the bed.

"Hurry!" I gasped, and my voice sounded to my self as though it also issued through bandages. I took out of my dressing.

"What about the bed linen?" he asked. "Was it worn?"

"Fairly warm," I told him. "They must have put it on the last few minutes."

"That I know of who they are," he said, pointing his wand to a sculptor, as all of us had ours. "There's a door through here close to a room where she stores old drawings and manuscripts. She and Carol are in there. I'll bet waiting a chance to get down to the door. I only hope they haven't heard us. Come with me."

Plan Capture

Close at his heels we went down the hall and ranged ourselves in front of that store room door.

"Miss Warlock," Harry whispered, "please go down and warn the men of what has happened. If my wife and Carolyn are on their way down, give us a signal as soon as they get there. And you look out for Carolyn. If they're inside here, I may have to let her go while I hold Mrs. Underwood. But Carolyn, mustn't get out. Watch out for her, and tie her up if necessary."

"I'll deal with her," the nurse promised, as she hurried to the stairs. Then Harry softly tried the store room door, which was locked.

"Lillian!" he called, "let me in, Sweet!"

He waited, called again, then, at a scrambling noise inside, caught my hand and rushed me noiselessly to the door of Lillian's sitting room.

Caught Just in Time

"If they go out that other door, they'll have to come around here to get to the stairs," he whispered, "so we have them either way."

Stationed beside the door we flattened ourselves against a little recess in the wall, to delay discovery. There I held my breath cut off as the door was opened stealthily and Lillian, followed by Carolyn, stole cautiously into the hall.

"Oh, oh!" Lillian screamed as her husband swept her into his arms. "Harry! You don't know what you're doing! I'm to have word of Marion in another hour, if I can get out. Carolyn, dear, run! Perhaps you can make it."

"Not this time," I said, holding Carolyn firmly by both arms. But I fared badly, as she squirmed in my grasp and kicked me viciously in her effort to get away.

Harry sent out a stentorian call, and just as Carolyn's strength threatened to wear mine down, Lucy came rushing up the stairs and pulled her away. Instantly Miss Warlock close behind him.

Carolyn a Wildcat

"Take this without, will you?" said Lucy to the nurse, "and hold her tight until we decide what to do with her. Madge, you can let go now. Miss Warlock has her."

Lucy glared at Carolyn.

"And now you'll pay for this!" he threatened.

"You coward!" she flared. "Where's my brother?"

"I will him to stay downstairs," Dicky said. "He isn't particularly anxious to see you after that last stunt you've tried to pull, and it wouldn't be very edifying for him to watch what's going to happen to you."

The threat in his voice made the girl quiver, although I knew that no personal chastisement would be given her. But Lillian suddenly broke out into passionate invective.

"If one of you touches that child, except with gentleness," she threatened, "I'll—I'll—" and her voice broke into hysterical sobs.
